

Processing Nonferrous Metal bearing Wastes

R. P. Das

Abstract

This presentation highlights the value of non-ferrous metal bearing waste as resources for production of metals and materials. A brief discussion on the techniques applied to convert the waste to value added products is presented. Three examples, i.e. e-waste, battery waste, and aluminium dross, are presented, showing the underlying principles of value addition through basic metallurgical techniques.